VANISHED WEALTH.

The Whole of Suicide Strauss's Big Fortune Unaccounted For.

NEARLY HALF A MILLION DOLLARS OF WHICH THERE IS NO TRACE.

VERY MYSTERIOUS ALL AROUND.

Here is a tale of disappearing dollars.

When Nathan Strauss shot and killed himself on Oct. 25, every business man who had anything to do with the dry-goods trade and every man interested in trading, was shocked and amazed.

A salary of $20,000 from the firm of I. Strauss & Co., of San Francisco, of which he was the Eastern representative.

When his death came it was stated that his accounts, upon examination, showed no signs of incorrect business methods.

Lawyer Einstein, of No. 27 Broadway, said he could not find anything in the dead man's affairs, and any cause for self-murder.

And now to that mystery is added another. All the generous fortune of Nathan Strauss has disappeared, whether by man's fault, or by the hand of fate, is unknown.

His $200,000, his wife's $100,000 and his mother's $50,000. That was two long ago; yet he could be found the day before yesterday, now that his affairs have been looked into, nothing in the way of an explanation.

Where has it all gone? Who has got it? That is what Mr. Strauss and his friends want to know. Mr. Strauss was Miss Minnie Gladie, of Emma, who has been living in this city and other members of the family, and who have asked her to take the two children, a boy and a girl, to her father's home in Emma.

County Employees Threaten to Lynch the Road Board.

THE BOARD ASSERTS THAT MR. CAHILL ORDERED THE WORK.

HAS THE $20,000 BEEN EXPENDED?

Nearly one hundred men previous to election employed on the county road in Essex threatened to mob the Road Board yesterday afternoon. The prompt arrival of a squad of police prevented them from carrying their threat into effect. The Road Board met in regular weekly session at the room in the credit system building at Market and Washington streets, Newark, at 2 o'clock. President Cahill was absent. He is held responsible for all the trouble.

The Freeholders appropriated $20,000 to the county Road Board for the purpose of improving the county roads outside of Newark. The men were put at work in gangs under the supervision of the Road Board.

The board's quarters are approached by a long narrow hallway. Into this the workmen crowded. They filled the open doorway. No attention was given to them at first. In a few minutes Frederick Courson, who was presiding, inquired:

"What do you men want?"

"Our pay," exclaimed a number at once.

"We have no money for you," Mr. Cahill set at work, and this board does not know anything about what is due you nor where you worked. Mr. Cahill's not here to-day, and he is the only man who knows about the matter. The work was not given out under any resolution of this board," explained Mr. Courson.

One of the foremost of the crowd then threatened: "We won't let you out of this room until we are paid our wages."

"Let's lynch them!" shouted another. Other threats were made.

The janitor was quickly sent for police assistance while Mr. Courson again addressed the crowd. He said:

"Gentlemen, we have no authority to pay you. Mr. Cahill hired you without consulting this board, and until he arrives we cannot give you satisfaction."

Clerk O'Hagen attempted to leave the room. The janitor was quickly sent for police assistance while Mr. Courson again addressed the crowd. He said:

"Gentlemen, we have no authority to pay you. Mr. Cahill hired you without consulting this board, and until he arrives we cannot give you satisfaction."
